

Project Update: March 2017

The research has now lead into the analysis and writing up stage. The thesis will comprise of three separate articles. In terms of the writing up I have completed the overarching introduction and literature review as well as each separate papers introductions and materials and methods.

This has been a challenge for me as the diving component of the research is now over and the office work is starting. It has been a challenge as the diving and data collection, in my opinion, is the more enjoyable part of the research. However, the preliminary results that have been received through analysis is showing interesting trends with both shark and diver behaviour. I am presenting my final work at the South African Marine Symposium in June 2017 and look forward to hearing the response of the experts in my field.
