

Project Update: December 2019

We conducted the field surveys during last month but unfortunately could not collect the camera pictures of the Asiatic black bear. The area was inaccessible due to bad weather conditions along with the heavy snowfall. This year snowfall started (once or twice in a week) earlier, from the very beginning of the November. We were still waiting for the weather conditions to be good enough to conduct a survey, but it seems impossible now. Therefore, we have to postpone the field work (according to my proposal) till March or April 2020 depends on the climatic conditions at that time.

However, I collected some faecal samples from the area close to the forest (i.e. human black bear conflict area) where bears usually use the human grown food. Please find the pictures in the attachment.
